GOOD-BY IN GERMAN

Teutons Forbid Farewells to Be Uttered in Enemy Language

Placards are now said to be himg in all German railway stations admonishing passengers to say "good-by" in German and not in any enemy language. "Adleu," being French, is strictly taboo, and of course the English "bye, old chap," and the American "see you later are equally objectionable to Teutonic ears. So in making their farewells in railway stations the Germans are advised by placard to take their choice of these forms:

"Between Moreuli and Lassigny our troops, according to the latest information, recaptured Avenour, and Monchel last evening, taking about 100 prisoners and fourteen machine guns. Today in the course of spirited engagements they made a notable advance in the region of Orvillers.

"On the Olse front enemy detachments, consisting of a battallion of storming troops, after having crossed the river near Chauny attempted to extublish a bridgehead on the left bank. In a vigorous counter-attack this battalion was completely annihilated or taken prisoner. The number of unwannied Germans remaining in our hands exceeded 100.

"Our long-range guns caught under their fire and destroyed an enemy train of heavy artillery in the region of Laos.
